COMPUTER CAN BE LIKE ONE

பெருமை

INTERACTIVE PLAYGROUND.

RoundTables are like clubs where you can get together with other people like you to share ideas, take part in nightly Real-Time Conferences, read and leave messages on Bulletin Boards, download software from our libraries of over 200,000 files, wear silly hats, whatever. Plus, you can hobnob with famous celebrities, authors, politicians and other guests who come online. And get answers to all your computing questions from the not-so-famous yet just-as-interesting experts in our Computing RoundTables.

THERE'S SOMETHING

FOR EVERYONE:

Topics include: Windows, science fiction, food and wine, White House, comics, Mac, photography, travel, military, Microsoft®, dogs, electronics, God, motorcycling, IBM® PC, soaps, MIDI, reggae, hot sauces, genealogy, current affairs, small business, automotive, Borland®, writers, sports, lots more.

Don't know where to start? Check out the New Members RoundTable, located on the main menu. You can practice getting around, find out where to go for help and even meet your new neighbors.

Reach out and talk, gab, gossip, yammer, blabber, rant, rave and basically chew the fat with someone. Whether you prefer one on one, a small group or an all-out party, there's always someone to talk to on our Chat Lines. Of course, you could just sit quietly and listen to what everyone else has to say. Nah.

Neither rain, nor snow, nor dark of night can stop GE Mail. Although poor typing skills might slow things down a bit. But as long as you can hunt and peck, you can send notes and letters to anyone on the system. Plus, you can send E-Mail to all those smart guys on the Internet—professors, students and scientists from around the globe. Just remember to check your spelling first.
